

UNIVERSITY FERNANDO PESSOA

Quick Guide 2020-2021

International Relations Office

INFORMATION COVID-19

Please note that due to the current sanitary situation and consequent uncertainty, it might be possible that our academic calendar suffers some changes, as our face-to-face teaching can be replaced by blended learning in case physical mobility proves to be somewhat limited or impossible.

Here are some tips on how to get ready for your Erasmus+ exchange mobility/study period due to the current sanitary situation and consequent uncertainty:

- Confirm with the airline company the conditions for flight changes or refund, in case that, for some circumstance, there is some anticipated return or cancellation.
- Purchase an appropriate health/travel insurance to ensure adequate medical care during you stay in Portugal.
- Book verified and safe and clean accommodation.
- Check the validity your ID, passport and European Health Insurance Card.

Hygiene and safety measures at University Fernando Pessoa:

- The use of protective mask is mandatory on campus.
- At the entrance and exit of the university, hands should be washed with water and soap or, alternatively, use hand sanitizer available in the common spaces of the University.
- In the buildings' common areas, the physical distance of 1.5m must always be maintained.

For the latest updates on COVID-19, please check our website: <https://www.ufp.pt/inicio/coronavirus/#English>

For more information regarding the COVID-19 in Portugal, please check the Portuguese National Health Service's website: <https://covid19.min-saude.pt/#>

Services & Facilities

Bars/Cafeterias | UFP has several bars/cafeterias where students can have their meals, socialize, or even work with their computers using the Wi-Fi network.

Accommodation | Accommodation arrangements must be made before your arrival, even if just for a temporary place to stay (e.g. Youth Hostel, hotels, etc.)

The information about our partners for accommodation is available at: <http://ri.ufp.pt/en/incoming-students/alojamento/>

Libraries | UFP's libraries exist to facilitate the spread of information in scientific areas taught at the University, serving as an educational support for teaching, research and learning, at undergraduate as well as post-graduate level. UFP's libraries provide services of on-site-reading, book loans, inter-library loans, self-service copy machines, access to data bases, among other services.

Student card | The student card is used for the following purposes: identification, access to book loans at the libraries and getting discounts at movie theaters and museums (if they have specific discounts for students).

Internships and Professional Careers Office | UFP's Internships and Professional Careers Office establishes connections with institutions and companies, making a bridge between the university and the labor market and ensuring the availability of curricular internships to all of UFP's undergraduate students.

Admissions Office | The Admissions Office provides information about study programs and rules of admission. Applications and the first registration at UFP are made through this office.

International Relations Office | The International Relations Office is responsible for implementing UFP's internationalization policies, for the internal management of the ERASMUS+ program, the institutional management of the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS), the application of UFP's European Policy Statement and for the internal monitoring of the Bologna Process.

Online pedagogical information | Students can access their pedagogical information (academic calendar, course schedules, grades, requests and notices) at <http://portal.ufp.pt>, using their personal log in and password.

Computer services | All students have free internet access at UFP using the wired and wireless network services available at classrooms, libraries, bars and cafeterias. Each student is also given an email address and online storage to create and keep a personal web page on the internet.

Laboratories | UFP has lab units to support the teaching of all its study programs.

Ambulatory Project of Oral and Public Health | UFP, through its Faculty of Health Sciences, provides its students a direct contact with the country's reality. The Ambulatory Project of Oral and Public Health allows health sciences students to be part of its mobile units and to perform diagnostic and therapy training in their areas of learning, accompanied by their teachers.

Students Office | The Students Office performs all administrative procedures concerning students' pedagogical attendance. Students can also use this office to present requests, ask for certificates of registration, transcripts of records, reappraisals of grades, exchanging study programs or readmission.

Insurance | All UFP students are covered by a personal accidents insurance. This insurance covers expenses related to treatment, disability or death arising from personal accidents inside UFP premises or on the way between the student's home and the university.

Printing and Copy Services | The Copy Center (CC) performs services of photocopying/printing in black and in colour, bookbinding, scanning documents. Students can access photocopy services at the CC or charge their student account in advance at the CC in order to use the self-service copy machines available.

UFPUV – Virtual University | UFPUV offers the support and mediation of electronic resources to extend the university's activity beyond its physical and time restrictions ("anywhere, anytime, anyhow"). The most visible part of UFPUV is its collaborative teaching platform. Using an Internet connection, a browser and the assigned log in information, any user can interact and develop their teaching/learning process at UFP's Virtual University. UFPUV is also used to complement in-classroom learning, in integration with other information systems at UFP. UFPUV essentially supports initiatives in a mixed system (by blending in-classroom learning with distance learning – b-learning), allowing more flexibility and freedom in learning for each individual to achieve their own rhythm.

UFP Press | The main purpose of UFP Press is to show what the University does in terms of research and it includes not only class books, magazines and proceedings, but also poetry, fiction and essays from people related in some way to the university. Purchases can be made online (<https://www.ufp.pt/inicio/viver-a-ufp/publicacoes-editora/>), at the university and at bookstores all over the country.

Social Service Office | Provides information and supports applications to scholarships given out by the Portuguese Directorate-General for Higher Education/Student Support Services (<http://www.dges.gov.pt>).

Health Services

Health and Leisure Academy (ASL) | UFP's ASL comprises its gyms, swimming pools and saunas. Mobility students from countries outside the European Union must have a Visa to study in Portugal issued by the Portuguese consular post in their home countries. Information regarding the entry in Portugal: <https://imigrante.sef.pt/en/entrada-em-portugal/>.

For more information on registration procedures and penalties: <http://www.sef.pt>.

Keeping safe in Porto

Although Porto is a fairly safe city, we would like to remind you that being aware of your surroundings all the time helps to ensure your safety. Please note that the area surrounding the University can't be considered one of the safest, especially late at night. It is probably a good idea to share a taxi if you go out as a group and always avoid walking on your own late at night. If something does happen please remember that at the police station at Rua dos Fenianos, also called "Tourism Police Station", officers will speak English and a number of other foreign languages (mainly Eastern European languages); their phone number is 222081833.

TO HELP YOU GET STARTED

Bom dia.

[bong-deer]* “Good morning”.

Boa tarde.

[boah-tard]* “Good afternoon”.

Boa noite.

[boah-no-ee-te]* “Good evening” and “Good night”.

Como?

[komoo?] If someone comes to you and say something that you can’t hear properly or can’t understand, this is the way you say “Sorry?” or “I didn't get that”. In other words, you can also use this word to ask someone to repeat something again.

Desculpe!

[des-cool-peh] is the word you use when you are sorry or when you did something wrong and you want to apologize for it. In short, this means “I’m sorry!”. You may also use this word to catch someone’s attention as well, for instance at the restaurant when you want to call the waiter.

Não faz mal!

[nah-fash-mahl] is the way you reply to “desculpe”. Equivalent ways to say this in English would be “no worries”, “no problem”, “don't mention it”, and so on.

Com licença!

[co-lee-sensah] means “excuse me”. You might use this when you want to get out of the bus when it is very crowded inside and you have people in your way.

Obrigado/obrigada

[oobree-gado] or [oobree-gadah] - men say “obrigado” and women say “obrigada” to say “thank you”.

De nada!

[de nah-dah] is what you say when people thank you for something you did for them. The equivalent in English would be “you’re welcome!”

Por favor!

[poorh pha-vohr] you say this to say “please” in any circumstance you can imagine. However, in Portuguese, when you give commands to people (when you ask them to do something) you don’t have necessarily to say “por favor” all the time, like you do in English. Normally the intonation of your voice will show whether you are being suggestive or bossy!

Está bem!

[tah baing] to say “It’s OK” when you agree with someone's suggestion, or to mean “that’s enough” when the waiter is putting food on your plate and you want him to stop.

Então? tudo bem?

[eng-ta-ong? too-doo bah-ing?] means in colloquial European Portuguese “So, how are you?” or “So, what's up?”.

If you want to ask someone if they speak English say:

Desculpe! Fala inglês?

[des-cool-peh! fah-la een-glaysh?].

You may also inform them that you only speak a little Portuguese. If this is the case, you must say.

Não falo muito português!

[nah fahloo moo-too poor-too-gaysh].

Or

Não percebo!

[naw pehr-say-boo] - I don’t/can’t understand.
